WIFE MURDER IS CONFESSED BY OHIO MAN

"I Wanted to Be Free to Run Around a Little," Prosecutor Is Told

BODY FOUND IN WOODS

"I've Suffered as Much as Man Can Suffer," He Says

Tiffin, O., July 22.—(A)—Joseph Perryman, 42, real estate operator at nearby Bellevue, confessed today, Prosecutor Paul A. Flynn said, to shooting his wife, Margaret, 53, to death in a lonely woods July 14 because he wanted to "be free to run around a little."

Flynn, Seneca County Sheriff Veine D. Deats and Ralph Parkhurst, Bellevue attorney representing the slain woman's family, found the body in an isolated area five miles northeast of Bellevue, in Erie county.

Deats said one bullet entered the back of the woman's head. Coroner John A. Yochem of Erie county planned to perform an autopsy.

The sheriff said Perryman had a revolver, with one cartridge discharged, when arrested last night at a Tiffin club.

"Yes, I must have killed her," Flynn and Parkhurst quoted Perryman, "but I can't understand why, even now."

"If I do this," he quoted the husband, "I'll be free to run around a little." Perryman added, "she sort of tied me down."

Hotel Night Watchman Key to Co-ed Murder; Violinist is Still Held

Miss Mildred Ward

Extra "Super Master Key" to Slain Girl's Room Is Found as Grilling of A libi Girl and More Hotel Employees Continues

By FRANK B. GILBRETH

Asheville, N. C., July 22.—(A)—Authorities followed a new lead today in their investigation of the slaying of Helen Clevenger, 18-year-old New York girl, questioning three employees of the fashionable hotel where she was shot to death. Sheriff Laurence Brown declined to reveal nature of the evidence, but said Daniel Gaddy, 28-year-old night watchman, is "the key to the whole case."

Edward Fleming, a bellboy, and L. D. Roddy, elevator operator, were the other two hotel employees detained for questioning. Each is about 25 years old.

"When Gaddy talks," the sheriff said, "we will know something, and I think he is getting ready to talk pretty soon."

"I am convinced the Clevenger murder was an 'inside job' and that the murderer is right here in Asheville now."

Authorities continued to hold Mark Wollner, 35-year-old violinist, and Mildred Ward, 19-year-old Asheville girl who corroborated Wollner's alibi that he was at home last Wednesday night when Miss Clevenger was criminally assaulted, mutilated, and killed.

Wollner lives at Miss Ward's home. His studio is across the street from the hotel where the murder occurred.

No charges have been made.

All of the five prisoners were questioned last night, Gaddy for the longest time, but Brown would not say what new information, if any, was obtained.

A piece of tape from the night watchman's time clock and a damaged "super-master key" which opens all rooms in the hotel were listed by the sheriff as the most important clues.

Brown said Gaddy failed to punch the time clock when passing the second floor—on which Miss Clevenger's room was located—on his rounds at 1 a. m., last Thursday morning, the approximate time of officers believe the New York University student was slain.

The key in question, the sheriff said, was found on Gaddy's keyring. A perfect key of the same type was found in the door to Miss Clevenger's room.

There were only 11 such keys authorized and distributed to employees, Brown stated, but 12 keys have been accounted for, including a damaged key and the one found in the door.

FIERCE FIGHT IS CONTINUING IN REVOLUTION

Thousands Are Reported Dead as Civil War Spreads All Over Country

"REDS" IN FOREFRONT

Foreigners in Danger, So Protection Arranged

Washington, July 22.—(A)—Dashing to Spain to evacuate Americans if necessary, one United States warship pointed its prow toward the coast of that strife-racked country today while another prepared to head down from France.

By flashing the orders to the battleship Oklahoma and the fast cruiser Quincy yesterday, State Department officials revealed their concern over the situation arising from the civil combat in Spain.

They had received no word, however, to indicate that any of the 1,582 Americans in the country had suffered harm. The dispatch of the warships, a step rarely taken, was ordered as a precaution—to afford Americans a ready means of flight if their lives were imperiled.

The battleship Oklahoma was off Cherbourg, France, yesterday, on a training cruise with midshipmen from Annapolis when Admiral William H. Standley, acting secretary of the navy, sent out the sailing orders after a lengthy conference here with Secretary of State Hull.

The big ship immediately began to take on fuel and officers were recalled from shore leave in France and England. She probably will sail Friday.

Upon reaching the northern coast of Spain she will place herself at the disposal of Ambassador Claude Bowers, now at San Sebastian, Spanish summer capital.

The Quincy, a 10,000-ton cruiser recently completed at Quincy, Mass., was on the Atlantic on a shakedown cruise when the orders reached her. She sailed from Norfolk, Va., Sunday, and naval experts figured she should reach Gibraltar Friday.

A possibility that the generally uncertain European situation might impel the United States to reestablish a naval squadron in European waters was indicated today by Secretary Hull as two American men-of-war raced against time for Spanish waters so they might evacuate nationals if necessary.

He said consideration of the question had not progressed to any definite point but this government (Continued on Page Six.)

FIVE ARE HELD IN FUN KILLING

Black Legionnaire's Tale of Killing Negro Gets Substantiation

Detroit, July 22.—(A)—Five men charged with killing a Negro World war veteran "just for fun" during a Black Legion drinking party a year ago stood mute today at their arraignment on murder and kidnapping charges.

Pleas of innocent were entered for the five, and all were ordered held without bail for examination July 28.

The first account of the shooting of the Negro came from Dayton Dean, confessor of Black Legion deeds of violence.

Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea said last night he had obtained a corroborating statement from one of the men Dean named.

That statement, the prosecutor said, came from James Roy Loran and, like Dean's account, named Harvey Davis, reputed Black Legion "colonel," John Rannerman, Ervin D. Lee and Charles Rouse as the other persons present when Silas Coleman, 42-year-old World war veteran, was shot to death in a march near Pinckney, Mich.

Davis, Lee and Rannerman, with 12 co-defendants, were to have gone on trial yesterday for the Black Legion "execution" of Charles A. Poole. That trial was postponed for at least two weeks. Dean has pleaded guilty in the Poole case.

BOY SAYS HE, NOT PAL, KILLED MAN

Less than 48 hours after his pal, Charles W. Smithson, 18, left, was convicted of the holdup-slaying of a Dayton, Ohio, grocer, Woodrow Fisher, also 18, and shown right, a boy, confessed he and not Smithson had done the killing. Fisher, who made his confession before reporters and then signed an affidavit absolving his friend of the slaying, said he waited until after Smithson's trial in the hope that Smithson would be acquitted and both freed. Detectives and officials at Dayton discounted the confession but reopened an investigation in the case.

ST PAUL POLICEMAN DENIES HE GOT CUT OF KIDNAP MONEY

St. Paul, July 22.—(A)—Tom Brown, suspended St. Paul police officer and a former chief of the force, denied from the witness stand in federal court today that he received $25,000 of the $100,000 William Hamm, Jr., ransom money.

He testified as a defense witness in the trial of John (Jack) Peifer, former night club operator, on kidnap conspiracy charges.

Brown denied previous testimony that he told Tom Dahill, former chief of police who was an earlier government witness, that "the people at 204 Vernon avenue had no connection with the Hamm kidnaping" after he made an investigation.

Byron Bolton, principal government witness, had related on the stand last week that $25,000 was "set aside" for Brown and $10,000 for Peifer.

Brown admitted, however, that he knew Peifer, the defendant.

PWA HIGH COMMAND UNDERGOES SHAKEUP

Washington, July 22.—(A)—In a shakeup in the Public Works Administration's high command, Secretary Ickes today gave A. R. Clas, Director of the Housing Division, part of the work formerly handled by Louis R. Glavis, famous investigator who resigned last week.

Glavis has taken a less remunerative post as chief investigator for the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee.

Ickes separated the work formerly carried on by the Interior Department Divisions of Investigation under Glavis' direction, putting Clas, a Chicagoan, in charge of the staff maintained to keep graft out of the WPA program. Bradley B. Smith, a former resident of Little Rock, Ark., was continued as acting Director of the Interior Department force concerned mainly with regulating interstate oil shipments.

There were no showers in sight for any of the north central states except Michigan and the area immediately around the Great Lakes, Lloyd said.

Conine was to marry Margaret Oren, daughter of Lawrence Oren, a farmer for whom Conine worked. She sits by the wounded youth's bedside daily.

FAIR TO THREE-FOURTHS OF CONSUMERS, IT IS SAID

Columbus, O., July 22.—(A)—The Ohio supreme court held today that 55 cents a thousand cubic feet is a fair gas rate for 75 per cent of Columbus' consumers.

The other consumers are paying 48 cents.

The court, in a 5 to 2 decision, affirmed an order of the state utilities commission fixing the 55 cent rate, which the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. has been collecting under bond since Feb. 1, 1933.

The ruling, climaxing litigation which began in 1929 and twice has been carried to the United States supreme court, affects approximately 65,000 of Ohio Fuel's 87,000 consumers in this city.

LILLY STILL HELD IN JAIL

Neighboring Counties Are After Him

Inquiries being received here indicate that Henry Lilly, 37, who has a dozen other names which he has used at various times, is a much wanted man in several counties in Ohio.

He was arrested in Columbus for theft of harness from Herbert Clickner in this city on June 15, while posing as a fly-spray salesman out of Akron.

Sheriff Icenhower took up the trail, was soon convinced that Lilly was the man he wanted, and after much search, located him in Columbus where he was arrested.

He had been hunted by Clinton county authorities for six years, being under indictment there as the alleged leader of a band of livestock thieves who operated in Ohio and Indiana and had a "fence" on a farm in Clinton county. He was indicted for grand larceny, in October, 1929, in connection with theft of 25 sheep from the Hunnicutt farm near Wilmington, the sheep being valued at $150.

His brother, Marvin, 34, jointly indicted with Henry, was arrested and sentenced to the penitentiary about a year ago.

Sheriff Gorman F. Clark of Madison county was to come here Wednesday to question Lilly in connection with theft of harness in that county. A warrant for his arrest has been issued in Madison county, so that by the time Lilly gets through with his troubles in this county, Clinton county and Madison county he may be facing charges elsewhere for other crimes of which he is suspected.

Pension Club Boss, However, Refuses to Give Details of Expenditures

Cleveland, O., July 22.—(AP)—The elderly Dr. F. E. Townsend was on an eastern speaking tour today with two walkouts to his record—one of them successful, to date, but the second halted because of the doctor's need of a shave and a chat with Al Schacht, baseball comedian for the Boston Red Sox.

The pension chief was committed to return here in less than a month to answer more questions in a court battle designed to oust him and other officers of the old age pension movement bearing his name.

Rounds one and two were staged yesterday—the first in a hotel room and the second in a court room. In the interim, the Long Beach, Calif., physician stalked from a deposition hearing, entered his limousine and headed for Erie, Pa.

It was three months to the day from the time that he walked out on a House of Representatives committee in Washington. A contempt of court citation still is hanging fire in connection with that March.

The doctor walked to a barber shop in the hotel for a shave. Then he tarried a few minutes longer to meet Schacht before driving away with George Maines, publicity man for the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, and Mrs. Townsend. In the interim, Benjamin F. Sacharow, attorney conducting the hearing, obtained a contempt of court citation from a Notary Public and set out with a deputy in a taxicab in hot pursuit. The Townsend party got as far as East Cleveland when he was overtaken and returned, this time, to a court room.

The contempt citation was dismissed by Common Pleas Judge Samuel E. Kramer on Sacharow's request as the $200-a-month pension plan father settled back and answered another hour's worth of questions about the organization. Then the hearing was recessed until 10 A. M. on Aug. 17 to permit the doctor to make his eastern tour.

"I am not at all displeased," declared the Townsend movement's founder. "It will probably result in 5,000 more clubs being organized the country over. It is all very highhanded, but since it is to my advantage, why should I care?"

The main statements elicited by Sacharow from Dr. Townsend in the day of questioning were:

That the movement has collected about $1,200,000 of which all but about $50,000 has been spent "in furtherance of the movement."

That Dr. Townsend has transferred about $10,000 from the old age revolving pension organization to Townsend visual education, headed by Dr. S. Earl Taylor of Baltimore, Md.

That Dr. Taylor was paid $500 a week for 12 weeks beginning in April, 1935, by Dr. Townsend to start the visual education project, and that Dr. Taylor now receives $300 a month out of the funds of the pension organization.

That Dr. Townsend paid Robert E. Clements, co-founder of the pension organization.

That Dr. Townsend paid Robert E. Clements, co-founder of the pension idea who resigned recently, $50,000 for Clements' share of the prosperity publishing company, which published the Townsend weekly, when Clements resigned.

Delinquent Taxes

It is encouraging to note that, at long last, the law makers of Ohio are giving some attention to the collection of delinquent taxes.

During the depression, delinquent taxes—unpaid taxes—accumulated to the staggering total of several hundred millions of dollars, a sum which the state could use now to good advantage in paying bills and meeting demands for more money.

There was plenty of excuse for not undertaking to force tax payments during the depression. People couldn't pay them and it would have served no good purpose to confiscate their property.

Now those conditions have passed. Only a small percentage of people are unable to pay taxes, due and delinquent. But there is a large percentage of property owners who make no effort to take up their delinquencies. Some, like those land owners, adjoining large cities, whose property has been laid out in lots that never sold, will never be able to pay the taxes they owe. Those delinquencies should be closed out by compromise or by "tax sale" of the property and the real estate taken out of the cities and placed again on the farm land lists.

All others who can pay should pay and the law-makers have acted wisely in making the collection mandatory upon county officers. That removes, from local officers, the pressure of appeals by neighbors to "go easy". It leaves them no discretion and should bring a huge sum into the state and county treasuries.

Japs and the Dardanelles

We have had many developments during the past year, evidencing Japan's war madness.

The latest and one of the most convincing proofs of that is to be found in the refusal of Japan to join with ten other nations in a treaty permitting, under certain conditions, the Turks to again occupy and fortify the Dardanelles.

Under the terms of the treaty the Dardanelles will be closed to warships of belligerent nations unless serving under League of Nations mandate or helping a victim of aggression under a mutual assistance pact included within the League's agreement.

It seems clear that Japan is endeavoring to maintain a position which would permit her to insist that the Russian Black sea fleet be kept "bottled up" by a closed Dardanelles. That's why Japan refuses to join in the agreements. They are expecting war.

The Danger of Fire

In times of excessive drought, such a one as now holds this area in its grasp, great care should be taken to avoid fire.

To a great extent the wood and coal burning cooking stoves have been replaced, both in urban and rural sections, by gas, gasoline and electric stoves, tho', of course, not entirely by any means.

In many instances barns and other outbuildings are lighted by electricity even in the rural districts, so that the old oil burning or candle burning lanterns have passed out of use to a great extent.

While there has been a decrease in those fire hazards of times past, new hazards have taken their place. Smoking has increased, the burning of trash, especially in the urban sections has increased and several gasoline driven farm implements have replace those formerly propelled by horse power.

Care should be taken by smokers, whether they smoke pipe, cigar or cigaret, to see to it that no burning embers are carelessly tossed away on the ground where grass and leaves are dry and inflammable. Matches should be handled with exceeding care and, after lighting, should be held until the last spark of fire is extinguished.

A fire, under present drought conditions, is a great menace to life and to property. While there may not be much wind blowing the deadly fire can run along on the ground without the slightest breeze because everything it contacts will instantly burst into flames.

WASHINGTON C. H. HERALD

Charles P. Stewart Says:

REPUBLICANS GUESSING ON LEMKE STRENGTH

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Washington, July 22—Having watched the Lemke-Townsend-Gerald L. K. Smith-Coughlin convention in Cleveland from afar, the Democratic and Republican managements are trying now to digest the gathering's implications and arrive at some definite conclusions concerning their bearing on next November's possibilities.

As to size and vigor, the Cleveland affair was far more formidable than orthodox politicians had expected.

It was less harmonious, however, than they had anticipated.

Not only was there plenty of hair-pulling among factions in Cleveland; still more of it is looked for as the campaign progresses. The Lemke-ites and Coughlin-ites are seen reasonably well affiliated, but the Townsend-ites appear to be split and the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith is regarded as being bent upon the task of stealing Dr. Townsend's thunder.

The regulars do not believe that the conflicting outlaw groups will get closer and closer together; they believe that they will get farther and farther apart as election day approaches.

WHICH?

Republicans prefer to think that the third party movement will draw much more heavily from President Roosevelt's vote than from their own; the Democrats prefer to think the opposite.

There is nothing in particular to prove either contention.

Maybe the defection from the old parties will be about 50-50; maybe it will amount to very little one way or the other. It's a new situation, not to be calculated accurately.

ZIONCHECK

And here's a queer one: Voters from the state of Washington tell me that Representative Marlon A. Zioncheck is likely to carry the Chinook commonwealth any way he boosts for.

Zioncheck, when he first came to Washington in 1933 as a Democrat, came with a fine reputation. He had, it was recognized on all hands, done a wonderful work in organizing Seattle's unemployed. I inter-

TOO COSTLY
Parent: Young man, do you really think you should be taking my daughter to night clubs and roadhouses all the time?
Suitor: Indeed not. Let's try to reason with her.

viewed him soon after his arrival here. He manifestly was a fine young legislator.

I judge that his constituents think so too. He can get them to attend his mass meetings at 25 cents per head.

His version is that he inadvertently went on a rampage in the capital but it was only temporary; that the administration, irritated by his rampage and perhaps by his intrinsic redness, utilized the rampage to put him hopelessly "on the fritz."

ARE ENJOINED IN CCC LITIGATION

Columbus, O., (A)—J. Clyde Edmondson and H. W. Roach, both of Athens, were under a preliminary injunction here restraining them from taking possession of Civilian Conservation Corps buildings on their property. They claimed the government lost claim on the buildings by failure to remove them when a lease on the land expired June 29. Federal Judge Moll G. Underwood issued the injunction.

WPA WORKER MAKES A RECORD—CLAIM

Akron, O., (A)—Tom Kendricks, 32, rested his sore arms Wednesday as WPA officials claimed for him a national record for laying 9-12 pound paving bricks on WPA projects. Eleven men were kept busy supplying him Tuesday as he laid 26,000 in a seven and one-half hour day.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks pink.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Poetry For Today

"TRIFLES"
The massive gates of Circumstance
Are turned upon the smallest hinge.
And thus some seeming pettiest chance
Oft gives our life its after-tinge.

The trifles of our daily lives.
The common things scarce worth recall,
Whereof no visible trace survives,
These are the mainsprings, after all.

TRAIL BLAZERS

Who Made Ohio History

By R. C. HALL
William Henry Harrison was a versatile trailblazer. His armies cut real trails through the wilderness, he led in the enactment of progressive laws for the frontier, he helped pacify the Indians and helped make the new "west" attractive for settlers.

Born in Virginia, he attended Hampden-Sidney college and then enlisted in the army, serving under General Wayne in the Northwest. From that time on, his biography is virtually a history of the north-west frontier. He represented the Northwest Territory in Congress, was the first territorial governor of Indiana and when the Indians arose again against the whites he defeated them.

The War of 1812 followed and Harrison was chosen the general of the western U. S. army. He successfully withstood the British at Fort Meigs and then carried the war into their own territory, winning the Battle of the Thames.

General Harrison was chosen U. S. Senator from Ohio and as the Whig candidate for president won the so-called "Hard Cider Campaign" with the slogan "Tippecanoe and Tyler too." He died just a month after his inauguration as President of the United States. He was buried at North Bend, Ohio.

High Spots In Ohio History

From the Galbraith collection of Ohio Histories. Written for the Associated Press.

Gov. John Brough had a difficult duty when President Lincoln called upon the state for hundred-day men in 1864.

The Governor decided to press the Ohio National Guard regiments into this service, but opposition arose among the officers of the National Guard, who tried to induce their men to refuse to muster.

Governor Brough provided, however, a full quota of these 100-day service men, who acquitted themselves so well that President Lincoln congratulated the men and their state upon the success of their efforts.

THE DOG IN THE POLITICAL MANGER (He Can't Win, and He Doesn't Want Anybody Else To!)

NEW YORK—Roundabout: The enthusiasm of certain chop house owners and restaurateurs for advertising their shops in a unique manner is turning Sheridan square into something of a barnyard. Looking out over the square from the roof of a building on the north is a glossy, contented-looking cow while on the south Jack Delaney not only has planted a slim wooden horse atop his eatery but has furthered the bucolic effect by hemming it in with a rustic, whitewashed fence.

Uptown, there is a restaurant called Le Boeuf sur le Toit, which translates into "the cow on the roof," but there's not really one there.

We've started a search for triple letter names but the only one located so far is that of the novelty company on lower Park avenue which sails under the cognomen: Baassted (no hyphen, please).

Case History: He had the face of a bulldog and the physique of a Sandow, but when that Lexington avenue bus driver closed the automatic doors on him and added insult to the injury by bawling out: "What's matter withyu? Step up. You're blocking the door" ... he answered: "Excuse me, I'm sorry."

George Raft, with heels on his shoes as high as those on cowboy boots, bidding farewell to a priest at the door of the Warwick and then climbing into a luggage-full taxi ... which was followed by two other cabs loaded with former Broadway pals headed for Grand Central to see him off ... end of a holiday.

Flashes of Life

PARDON THE BLUSH.
Overland Park, Kas.—Volunteer firemen, dashing to a grass fire in an isolated field at 2:30 a. m., headed across a ditch with their only truck. It bogged down and they fought to save it as the flames crept closer. Finally the flames died, just a few feet from the truck.

LIFE SAVER.
Blackwell, Okla.—C. J. Robinson sadly watched the heat kill his chickens and when only three remained he got an idea. He took the trio to the basement and with a bicycle pump blew air under their wings. They survived.

VITAL STATISTICS.
Milwaukee—The Wisconsin Journey Men association announced a year's survey disclosed these averages for barber shop services: Haircut, 22.7 minutes; shave, 17.2 minutes; shampoo, 16.7 minutes; sing, 14.9 minutes; hair tonic application, 8.6 minutes; mud pack, 36 minutes.

It offered nothing on the number of words per operation.

SAD BUT TRUE.
Chicago—Jack Mille, 28, made a futile effort to persuade a robber not to take his automobile and $50. Mille told the man he could not afford to lose the money.

"Shucks, fella," said the robber, pocketing the $50, "I gotta live, too."

"I have been ringing that bell for 20 years and never before was it against the law," Antonio told Magistrate Peter Abeles. The magistrate pondered mightily over the case ... suspended sentence ... and ordered John Antonio to get himself a smaller bell.

A sure sign that the rich are getting richer again is that the yacht business is on the up and up. Drake Sparkman, of the yacht-designing Sparkmans, tells us he is launching as rapidly as possible at Nevins yard on City Island 20 one-design yachts with an overall measurement of 45-feet for members of the New York Yacht club. There are no big, ocean-going yachts being built, Sparkman says ... but then it will take some years of prosperity to absorb that 1929 surplus.

MISS Ramona Short, whose wedding will be an event of Monday, July twenty-seventh, was complimented Tuesday evening with another charming party, a dessert-bridge entertained by Mrs. Clark Pensyl. Four tables of guests were invited and were seated for the serving at small tables.

Both the table appointments and the dessert course were carried out beautifully in a pastel color scheme, the centerpieces crystal and silver bud vases of sweetpeas and fern.

A progressive game of bridge occupied the evening and at its close lovely favors for first and second high scores and a handsome gift for the guest of honor were presented. The attractive packages were tied with pastel ribbons and dainty corsage bouquets. Miss Dorothy Sparks and Miss Waunita Gerstner won the bridge prizes.

Mrs. Pensyl was assisted in the delightful hospitalities by her sister-in-law, Miss Amelia Pensyl, and Mrs. Charles Schwartz.

Included with Miss Short in the pleasures were Miss Mabel Icenhower, Mrs. Woldeane Icenhower, Mrs. Richard Jacobs, Mrs. Andy Loudner, Miss Helen Hutson, Miss Florence Sparks, Mrs. Clovis Graves, Mrs. Henry Brownell, Jr., Miss Mary Grace Snyder, Miss Helen Simons, Mrs. Paul Strigle, Mrs. Charles Schwartz, Miss Amelia Pensyl, Miss Dorothy Sparks and Miss Waunita Gerstner.

BEAUTY IS WORKED INTO HOOKED RUGS
EXTRAORDINARY HANDIWORK OF LATE WM. A. KINNER

An extraordinary collection of hooked rugs and tapestries in which beauty of design combines with skilled workmanship generally, the handiwork of the late William A. Kinner formerly of East Temple street, is being displayed at the present time by the owners, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Clark, at their home at 314 Forrest street, for the benefit of friends and others who are interested in seeing the unusual collection, and who arrange by telephone to suit the convenience of Mr. and Mrs. Clark.

Most of the rugs are of early American design, and the skilled hands of Mr. Kinner wrought marvels with the var-colored wool yarn which he dyed himself to suit his fancy and bring out the wonderful shading effects in flowers, landscapes, and other designs.

Mr. Kinner spent much of his time with his rug work, and it required months to complete some of the finest of the collection of fifty or more, so that he had a value of several hundreds of dollars on the largest and finest specimens of his work.

Mr. Kinner worked out his own designs then followed them to the letter, so that when the rugs were finished they represented as true a reproduction of the original as if it had been produced by photography.

Strangely enough few persons were aware of the artist who worked tirelessly in assembling the many colored yarns into things of unusual beauty during his several years residence in the city.

was not unmindful of the problem created for it by the absence of vessels on permanent station in European waters.

Pitched battles on scattered fronts punctuated Spain's civil war today as the government sought to quench a rebellion which it estimated had taken a thousand lives in five days.

Bullets peppered San Sebastian, summer residence of the American ambassador, Claude G. Bowers, as 2,600 armed miners from the Bilbao region, loyal to the Leftist government, attacked rebels who had seized the town.

A Reuter's (British) News Agency dispatch to London from Hendaye, France, said San Sebastian had been recaptured by loyal forces.

Fighting and Leftist disorders were reported from throughout northern Catalonia.

The United States embassy in Paris tried unsuccessfully to communicate with Ambassador Bowers at San Sebastian, but lines had been cut.

An indication that Luis Companys, provincial leader in Catalonia, may have been deposed was given in a violent anarchist attack on the semi-autonomous government of Catalonia from the Barcelona radio station.

From Rabat, French Morocco, came a dispatch that loyal troops, backed by guns of the cruiser Lepanto, were reported to have seized

The British admiralty accelerated the movement of warships to the troubled zone. Britain's Gibraltar colony faced a food shortage as the rebellion cut off all supplies.

From Paris came the report that a decisive battle was imminent north of Madrid between rebels and government forces.

A message from General Cabanero, chief of the rebel forces at Zaragoza, reported heavy fighting west of Barcelona. The government took over the cathedral and other Barcelona churches as "people's institutions." Some churches in Madrid have been burned.

Paris, July 22.—(AP)—The United States embassy tried unsuccessfully today to communicate with American Ambassador Claude G. Bowers at San Sebastian, Spain, center of a battle between rebels and loyal forces.

All communication lines were cut when insurgents seized the town last night, the embassy here announced, and diplomats were unable to put through telegraph and telephone inquiries after the fighting started.

The ambassador to Spain, it was believed here, went to San Sebastian with other members of his staff for a diplomatic corps holiday on July 15, and has been isolated there by the revolt.

The court's decision took up the complicated case under four divisions: 1. Valuation including price trends; 2. Operating expenses; 3. Depreciation; 4. Rate of return.

On the question of valuation, the opinion said: "A laborious study of the superabundant record of 70,000 pages discloses a sharp conflict of competent evidence, and under such circumstances this court cannot properly hold that the findings of the commission are against the weight of the evidence."

"Certainly this court is at least in no better position to appraise the value of this conflicting testimony."

The court held the commission was justified in refusing to allow for money invested in construction before it became useful to the company's operations, the utility claiming an average of $3,000,000 was so employed over a nine-year period.

"An allowance was made, however," the decision continued, "for the item of interest during construction, which fully and adequately compensated the company for the use of its capital which was invested in unfinished construction work."

The company's complaint that the commission failed to take into account cost of property and replacement value was dismissed in these words:

"In support of its contention that cost of property was ignored, the company offered a table which purports to show cost of the company's intrastate property aside from construction work in progress, and similar facts. But there is nothing in the record to show that the evidence so offered was not considered, along with the other evidence in the case relating to cost, in determining the rate base."

"As to the claim that the commission did not consider cost of reproducing property, the record discloses that evidence was adduced relating thereto and there is entire absence of a showing anywhere in the record that the commission failed to give proper consideration to such evidence bearing upon the question of expense of reproducing essential property."

Contentions of the company that the commission took "judicial notice" of price trends although no evidence had been introduced on this point were thrown out by the decision under precedents of U. S. Supreme court and Ohio decisions.

"Even a casual examination of the decisions of the United States Supreme court unquestionably discloses definite and repeated sanction of this principle," the court stated, citing the decisions.

The "operating expenses" section of the decision was devoted chiefly to the company's claims for allowance of payments to the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, the parent corporation, for license and service arrangements.

Pointing out that the Commission ruled the contract between parent and subsidiary corporations benefitted the Ohio service to some extent, the court added:

"It (the Commission) found, however, that a portion of the payments so claimed resulted in no benefit to the Ohio Bell Telephone Company and should not be included in its operating expenses, X X X."

"It (the Commission) did not and was not bound to accept fully and unconditionally the statements of the company as to the amount claimed to have been paid to the parent company, nor was it concluded thereby as to the reasonableness or propriety of such service; nor bound to regard the amount paid as the true value of such service to the Ohio Bell Telephone Company."

The high court occurred in the Commission's methods of fixing depreciation allowances, including that depreciation reserves were inadequate when various companies were consolidated into the Ohio Bell system in 1921.

"There can be little argument that when the consolidation of 1921 occurred," the court ruled, "and upon the acquisition of additional properties, the company should have provided from capital contributions or charged to surplus the amount necessary to replace worn out, obsolete and useless units."

The judges agreed with the Commission's conclusion that the telephone company had charged "excessive amounts" for depreciation to make up the deficiency in its reserves, these exorbitant charges being reflected in operating costs claimed to sustain higher rate bases.

The court's decision on "rate of return" held the Commission was empowered to vary the allowable profit rate for the company in accordance with prevailing conditions. The Commission had fixed a maximum return of seven per cent for 1925 to 1929, six and one-half per cent for 1930 and 1931, and five and one-half per cent for 1932 and 1933.

The decision held the allowable rate might be raised in periods of prosperity and lowered when business was at low ebb.

"The fact that the prevailing economic depression," the decision said, "is reflected in a reduction in the rate of return allowed to a utility does not necessarily render the rate of return allowed confiscatory when the reduction made is reasonable in the light of prevailing conditions."

MARKETS and FINANCIAL NEWS

DAY'S ACTIVITIES IN WALL STREET
By VICTOR EUBANK

New York, July 22.—(AP)—After a virtually uninterrupted climb since July 8, stocks generally backed away under profit taking in today's market.

A few merchandise, motor and specialty issues emerged with gains but most of the recent leaders yielded fractions to a point or more. Transfers were around 1,450,000 shares.

Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Spiegel-May-Stern and Coca Cola got up a point or so each on expanding sales prospects.

Others steady to a point or more higher included Auburn, United Aircraft, American Smelting, Pullman, Continental Oil, American Water Works, Socony, Louisville and Nashville and Texas Corp.

About unchanged to heavy were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, J. I. Case, Deere, International Harvester, American Telephone, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Anaconda, Kennecott, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Corn Products, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific and International Telephone.

Bonds were irregular, with rails lower. Commodities were mixed. Foreign exchanges were easier in terms of the dollar.

Corn was strong at Chicago, ending up 1 to 3 1/2 cents a bushel. Wheat was 1/2 to 3/4 firmer.

REDS DOWN BOSTON

Lowly St. Louis Browns Beat the Yankees and Cleveland Nears Top

By SID FEDER

Just about once every year, Carl (Screwball) Hubbell and Diz (The Great) Dean hook up in a baseball masterpiece.

"The Hub" came out on top in a tight duel with the "Great One" yesterday, with whatever breaks there were going against Dean to make their rivalry over the last three seasons all-even at two wins and two losses for each.

"Old Diz" gave up only five hits to the Giants over ten innings, while his Gas House gang mates were getting to Hubbell for nine. He struck out half a dozen batters and walked only two. Hubbell fanned but three and passed five.

But Dizzy made the mistake of serving the home run ball more than Hubbell. The Giants, won two home runs to one. Dick Bartell's roundtripper in the tenth broke up the game, after earlier four-baggers by Gus Mancuso and Pepper Martin had tied it all up.

Ducky Medwick stole the show by tying the National League record for consecutive hits. He had made seven in a row Sunday, and added three more yesterday to deadlock the mark at ten. Then he failed in an effort to tie Tris Speaker's major league mark by grounding out his next time up.

The Cardinals' loss put them two full games back of the National League-leading Chicago Cubs, who barely turned back a late Brooklyn rally to nose out the Dodgers 5-3. The Pirates managed to remain in third place by clubbing the Phillies 17-6, after coming from behind a 5-0 deficit. The Cincinnati Reds handed the Bees their third straight setback, as Benny Frey bested Ben Cantwell, 3-2, in a mound struggle.

The Cleveland Indians cut the Yankees' American League lead to eight games by nosing out the Red Sox 6-5, while the Yanks were bowing to Al Thomas and the St. Louis Browns 5-4.

The Chicago White Sox had their eight-game winning streak snapped as the Senators came through 6-5. The Tigers moved back into third place and dropped the skidding Athletics into the cellar by taking a doubleheader decision. They won the opener 8-0 behind Tommy Bridges' seven-hit pitching, and gained a 9-8 edge in the night cap with a two-run rally in the eighth.

Cardinals Beat Giants In Morning Ball Game

The Cards proved too much for the Giants, walloping them 13 to 7 Tuesday morning at Wilson Field.

The Cards scored in every frame except the fourth, getting three in the first, one in the second and third and four in the fifth and sixth. The Giants tallied one run in the second, three in the fifth and three in the sixth.

The players: Cards: E. Stanforth, J. Stanforth, Grimm, McConahey, Winkle, Huff, Steele, Boylan, Cooper. Giants: G. Hatfield, Sexton, Coulter, Curry, Davies, Aldridge, Hare.

GOLFER PARS FIRST 6 HOLES FIRST TIME HE TRIES GAME

Washington—(P)—This is another of those "they all laughed when I sat down at the piano" stories, wherein the hero comes through with flying colors.

Cornelius H. Doherty has been a member of the Washington golf and country club for some years, but he devoted his leisure hours to tennis rather than to golf. In past years he had won the District of Columbia tennis championship.

A few days ago Doherty decided to play a round of golf with friends. For the average beginner, the odds are that he'll miss the ball entirely in his first swipe at it. It's probable he won't get within yelling distance of par on any hole and that his final score will be a total about the size of the German war debt.

So, his friends were ready for a boring round.

Doherty took driver in hand for the first time, stepped to the tee and whacked one down the middle. He got a par 4 on the first hole.

"What an example of beginner's luck," his foursome mates said.

Then he banged in a putt for a

POLICEMAN, STEEL WORKER AND ACTOR CLOSE UP

Farmingdale, N. Y., July 22—(P)—Led by a haberdashery salesman from Washington, a radio policeman and a steel worker from San Francisco and a movie extra from Pasadena, Calif., the 64 survivors of a pair of record breaking qualifying rounds began match play in the National Public Links golf championship today.

Claude Rippey of Washington refused to be daunted yesterday by the difficult blue course at Beth Page State Park and came home in 70 strokes to tie Jimmy Molinari, a husky six-footer who patrols San Francisco streets in a radio car, for the qualifying medal. Each had a 36-hole total of 145.

Two strokes behind them came Charlie Ferrera of San Francisco, twice winner of the "poor man's" golf title, and Pat Abbott, curly haired motion picture performer who won the Southern California open title last winter. In fifth place at 148 was Bill Kinkella of Seattle.

MADE 2 ACES IN ONE DAY

SURPASSES WILDEST DREAMS OF OOLE IN ONE PLAYERS

Montreal, July 21—(P)—Nick Bessner has accomplished a feat which equals if not surpasses the wildest dreams of all hole in one club members, two aces in one day.

Yesterday morning Nick fired with his No. 7 iron on the 125-yard fifth hole at Wentworth golf club and rejoiced to see his tee shot roll into the cup. As the foursome came up to the same tee in their afternoon round Nick remarked, "I'm going to do that again."

And he did.

"I expect to visit Portsmouth either August 2 or 3 to look over the park. We haven't considered any changes yet in the management or of any officials. Naturally, we will select a manager there who will be able to develop young players."

Olympic Swimm Hard One for U. S.

MEN'S TEAM IS GIVEN EVEN BREAK TO BEAT JAPS

Aboard S. S. Manhattan Enroute to Berlin, July 22—(P)—America's Olympic swimmers, who have been working out daily in the ship's mid-get pool while voyaging toward Berlin, face the keenest challenges from other nations of any American teams.

This applies to both the men's and women's teams, whose coaches are planning an intensive two-weeks training period at Berlin to tune up.

Bob Kipthuth, coach of the men's team, told the Associated Press that the swimmers have "a fifty-fifty chance of regaining the men's team honors lost to Japan in 1932," while Say Daughters of Seattle, coach of the women swimmers, said, "we have to beat the Dutch to keep the title."

Sport Slants

By CHARLES GRUMICH

New York—Swimming the 100- and 400-meter free-style races, diving in the springboard competition and taking a turn with the relay team seems like a big order for a shy little girl standing 5-foot-2 and weighing a scant 105.

But that's the 4-ply assignment for Katy (Cutie) Rawls, the 19-year-old freckled blonde from Florida in the Olympic swimming events at Berlin. She's untroubled by the large order. Hadn't she been a swimmer as long as she could remember and a competitor since the day she entered a school tank meet as a precocious 9-year-old and won the breast-stroke, diving, back-stroke and free-style events quite handsly? She had, all right. You could take the word of Coach Willis Cooling of Miami Beach and Westchester county, New York, for that.

Cooling took Katy over as a pupil when she was 11 and weighed 60 pounds. After a few weeks' work Katy won the national 10-foot diving title—and since then she's been in the spot so often she can't remember what all she's won.

Four years ago in the Los Angeles Olympics Katy was runnerup in the springboard diving to Georgia Coleman, who has since retired.

U. S. NEEDS KATY

Katy's ambitious Olympic program drew some criticism from the dachards who contended, unfairly, it seems, that she should have passed up some events in order to allow others to win themselves boarides to Berlin. Should Jesse Owens have frittered away the 200-meter sprint and the broad-jump after winning the 100 meter in the American trials? Should the already hard-up swimming forces take along some inferior talent just for the boat-ride?

The correct answer is no in both cases. The U. S. should have its best contenders in each Olympic event and a competitor who can take care of four assignments without over-exertion is decidedly a bargain.

Katy is to women's swimming what Glenn Morris of Colorado is to the decathlon—only she is capable of winning national championships in practically every event in swimming, whereas the decathlon man needs to be merely better-than-average in each of his 10 track and field events.

SHE'S WON 'EM ALL

Miss Rawls has won national titles in springboard and high platform diving, freestyle, breast-stroke and medley swimming—the only girl ever to win them all and, says Coach Cooling, the only one likely to do that, ever.

Just graduated from high school at Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., Katy is registered for entrance in the Florida Women's College at Tallahassee next fall. She doesn't know what profession she wants to follow, but maybe it will be newspaper writing in sports.

"I'm not interested in becoming a physical education director," she says, and Coach Cooling agrees she wouldn't have the patience.

"And I don't want to be a school-teacher or anything that requires a lot of science. I'm not musical, either," says Katy, "so maybe I'll take up journalism and write about sports."

Okay, Katy.

ON PORCH WHEN SPRAYED

Troy, N. Y., July 22.—(AP)—Police kept a close watch on a riverfront neighborhood here where eight boys and a girl were showered with an acid solution while playing cards.
Extra patrols were sent into the section when a crowd of nearly 200 persons gathered in front of the house where the incident occurred yesterday. Acting Captain George Ruff of the first precinct said, "a lot of people were making threats, but nothing happened." A special guard was maintained at the house until midnight.
Ruff said an unidentified person emptied a paid of acid solution from an upper floor window on the nine while they were playing cards on a front porch. Their ages ranged from 11 to 18.
Dr. J. V. Barrett who treated the victims said there was a possibility

Lady, Be Gallant By MARIE BLIZARD

READ THIS FIRST:
Joan Spencer, a small town school teacher, recently disappointed in love, is engaged as secretary to Julian Sloane, noted playwright. She seems to enjoy her new life immensely at Sloane's luxurious summer home where she now lives. Sheila True, an actress and close friend of Julian's, is the only disturbing factor.
Sheila obviously is jealous of the playwright's pretty secretary. At a house party Joan sits out a dance with Pierre Durand, Sheila's new lover. While playing golf during the same week-end party, Joan re-sues Sheila who has overthrown in a canoe with Pierre and then suddenly is stunned by a blow on the head as she is about to climb from the lake.
While Joan is recuperating from her accident, Alex Garrity, an admirer she had met at Sloane's, tells her that Julian is in love with her. Just as Joan begins to realize this, he coming extremely fond of Julian, he tells her he must go to Europe on business. Joan returns to her sister's home in Blackville while Julian is abroad, marking time before the housekeeper opens his town house.
In New York just before Julian's return, Joan sees Alex Garrity again.
He expresses regret that she has to live at Julian Sloane's house.
(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 19
"IS THERE anything wrong with Julian Sloane's house?" Joan asked in hushed theatrical tones after Alex had said he wished she didn't have to live there.
"No," he said shortly.
"My but you're disappointing! I thought you had your own house, steve, at least. I know your kind, Alex Garrity. You're the kind of a man who leads a woman on, creating false ideas. Here you lead me to believe that there is a Bluebeard hiding there and you let me down."
"All right, if you're not smart enough to see what I mean, I guess I'll have to explain. I only said that I wished you would move out because you aren't going to be your real self, an entity, a personality, until you have — me private life of your own."
"Goodness me," Joan pretended to be completely dumbfounded. "I always thought I had some kind of personality that belonged to me and I know darn well that I have a private life. Perhaps," she went on sently, "I ought to explain it all over to you, Alex. I am only July. . . Mr.
Sloane's secretary. I'm not his hostess or his housekeeper or anything else that you may have thought up. . ."
"I didn't think up 'anything else', Joan. I guess a lot of people might when an attractive secretary lives in the same house with her unattached employer but I wouldn't want to know that kind of a girl and I know you're not that kind."
Joan turned her head quickly and studied him. She was relieved on one score. Alex was one of those rareties — a dashing young man with a moral sense. On the other hand, the disturbance thought occurred to her that he, like most of his kind, might be a prig to some extent.
Time enough to think of that later.

The complexities of Alex's mind might be interesting to study at another time. Meanwhile she had set out to make herself become interested in him and, through him, to meet other young people who would divert her mind from those in the small circle in which she was fated to move.
What had he said last that she hadn't liked? Oh, she remembered.
"You see, darling," the "darling" was deliberate, "I save all my living expenses and I do not have regular working hours. Sometimes Mr.
Sloane works early in the morning and sometimes late at night. It is more convenient for both of us."
"All right, Joan, have it your way but I don't particularly like having to call on you and have Julian treating me like a puppy."
"Now, who's being silly? Mr.
Sloane isn't remotely interested in me or my personal friendships and besides you were a good friend of his before you ever knew me. So let's talk about something else. Let's talk about my new suit or what we're going to have for dinner. I'm in a mood to be adventuresome about food, or do you object to ladies who attend to loving good food?" Joan rattled on and wondered if every time she saw Alex, or anyone else for that matter, she'd find herself talking enthusiastically about Julian. It might not be a bad idea. She might get tired of him that way.
"The suit is beautiful but you are so beautiful I had hardly noticed."
"Do you really think women dress to please men or other women?" she asked playfully.
"Mm," he answered. "Are you in a mood for old dishes done up in new style at a fine place called Heidelberg House?"
Definitely Joan was. She was also in a mood for a heartening cocktail that she sipped gratefully and felt her fatigue slip away from her. She flirted mildly with Alex and found it didn't go over too well. Surprising boy. Full of moods. Oh, indeed, learning to know Alex was going to be interesting and effective, she hoped.
One would never know how he would react. He was gayest at the most unexpected times. And when she wanted to be playful he was not at all gay. Come to think of it, he hadn't been gay in her company in some time. Joan decided maybe it was because he liked her too much.
That, possibly, would be all right in time but the time hadn't arrived yet.
She made a renewed conversational attack when their entree arrived. The dinner was excellent and Joan had a healthy appetite. They lingered lovingly over their food, enjoying it to the last morsel, sipping their coffee long after all the others had left.
"Anything special you'd like to do now?" Alex asked when he had sent for their check.
In the first place, the thing Joan wanted most was to go home and go to bed but she didn't think she could say that very gracefully. And she didn't like to invite him to come home and visit her in Julian's house since Julian was not yet back from Europe.
"It's a divine night. Would you mind walking? This air is like champagne and the lights, the cooler air, the whole atmosphere of New York makes me tingle all over."

Alex admitted that for Joan to tingle all over was all that he could hope for and walked her over to her slight of the East river on a showed her a panorama she was forever to be thrilled with and forever to associate with him.
They sat on a dock at the foot of Fifty-fifth street and saw the stars above reflected in the black, swirling waters. The Queensboro bridge at their back was a ghostly framework of graceful gray lace. Across the river the lights of Long Island winked and blazed in bright yellows, reds and greens. And other lights of red and green, like minute candles on a Christmas night came winking into view, riding the swift little black boats that came and were lost to sight seemingly within an instant.
The activity of New York's East river must be seen on an exhilarating night for the first time to be appreciated. Joan saw and loved it.
Briskly Joan, matching her steps to the strides of Alex's long legs, kept pace with him as they crossed the city, stepping around the children that still played as late as that hour in the dirty, unkempt streets of the far east side.
"Up?" she said when they reached Park avenue.
"Nope," Alex answered, guiding her across that broad avenue. "We're going to '21' and have a nightcap and see and be seen."
On the way Alex explained to her that "21" was the meeting place of theatrical lights, socialites, writers and others who had arrived. She saw plenty of them in that smart spot — the only real survivor of the speak-easy days when an intimate atmosphere was a primary requirement.
She saw Robert Benchley, Tallulah Bankhead and Mary Astor in the chic, laughing crowd and Alex pointed out people whose names were long familiar to her. She was as thrilled as a child. If this was a taste of New York, what a winter she was going to have!
Julian was arriving Friday, his wire said.
Friday her personal shopping was finished. There was a beige ecot trimmed with heavy, black taffeta dress and a brilliant red wool, a white crepe evening dress and a velvet dinner gown.
She had more shopping to do.
She bought an armful of late autumn leaves and a box of yellow chrysanthemums. She thought that would be her welcome for Julian.
He'd like that touch in his library.
But when she arrived she found the house filled with flowers and in the dining room was Sheila looking like a chrysanthemum herself in an amber velvet gown. Sheila was studying the table flower arrangement thoughtfully.
The table, Joan saw at once, was set for two.
She placed the flower box on the foyer table and went out again, closing the door very softly behind her.
